

Open letter: Your commitment to the Sustainable Development Goals

Dear Lewis Macdonald MSP

We are writing to you at what we believe is a significant moment in Scotland's commitment to itself and the planet. Neatly captured by the UN Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), we invite you to join our ambition that the SDGs are achieved in Scotland and across the world.

Scotland was amongst the first nations to sign up to the 17 SDGs, which are the closest the world has come to a strategy to end extreme poverty, fight inequality and tackle climate change. As a group of citizens and organisations committed to the human and planetary wellbeing of this generation and future generations to come, we support the implementation of the SDGs in Scotland.

This January marks two years since the SDGs came into force in Scotland, and over this time citizens, civil society organisations, business leaders and politicians across the country have tasked themselves to see that we implement the SDGs both domestically and internationally.

This initial commitment to the SDGs has been vital and should be applauded. Every Party Leader in the Scottish Parliament has pledged support to the SDGs and 100 of Scotland's 129 MSPs have chosen one SDG they will champion in Parliament. However, now is the tough part – implementing the SDGs.

From the development of a national website for the SDGs to a special pop-up exhibition and the inception of Scotland's SDG Network, our organisations have worked to mobilise people in Scotland around the SDGs since their adoption. We now want to work with you to achieve a breakthrough in sustainable development in Scotland and overseas.

Because of this, Scotland's SDG Network – a coalition of people and organisations committed to pursuing the SDGs and building awareness and engagement across Scottish society – is calling on you to demonstrate your commitment to the SDGs and the specific actions the Health and Sport Committee is taking that contribute towards implementing the SDGs in Scotland and overseas.

The SDGs are a call to action on the most serious and challenging issues facing our society and environment throughout the next decade. We invite you to respond to this letter with the action points the Committee is taking that relate to the 17 critical areas reflected in the SDGs.

We will publish all responses in May 2018 in a report on our website: www.globalgoals.scot. The purpose of collating this information is to inform the direction of activities in Scotland relating to the SDGs two years on since they were adopted in Scotland. Ahead of this time, please send your response no later than April 2018 to globalgoals@scvo.org.uk.

We look forward to hearing from you on your commitments to delivering the SDGs in Scotland, and we would welcome the opportunity to meet with you to discuss how we can move ahead with a Scottish plan to see that we achieve the SDGs.

If you have any comments or questions or would like to arrange a meeting with the network, please contact our Network Coordinator: Paul Bradley, paul.bradley@scvo.org.uk

We thank you in advance for your support and look forward to working with you.

Yours,
